

Gerard Malanga is a poet, photographer, filmmaker and actor in many of Andy Warhol's most important movies, including Chelsea Girls and . His poetry has been seen in the New Yorker, The Paris Review, The Partisan Review and in more than twenty-five separate book collections. Among his accomplishments are making famous the "whip dance" which he performed with the Velvet Underground, and helping found Interview magazine, of which he was the first Editor.

But that doesn't free the caged black panther

"The Mother With No Hands"

A Red Heart Where Love Should Be

James Krusoe's four books of poetry are Notes On Suicide (Momentum Press), History of the World (Bombshelter Press), Small Pianos (Momentum Press) and his new Little Caesar collection. He is director of the Writing Center at California State University in Los Angeles, and teaches creative writing at both Santa Monica College and The Beyond Baroque Literary/Arts Center, where he is a former Director of Programming.

Ian Young is well known as a poet, critic, publisher and anthologist.

The books of his poetry include Common-Or-Garden Gods (Catalyst Press) and Double Exposure (The Crossing Press). He is the editor of two important anthologies of gay literature, The Male Muse and On the Line: New Gay Fiction. His writings on contemporary poetry appear regularly in the Body Pacific, and he is the publisher of Canada's most significant small press Catalyst in Toronto, where he currently lives.

"Now. Do it! Do it!"